Bryston 14B-SST THE DEFINITIVE VERDICT ON THE PRODUCT OF THE YEAR

“Another monster in terms of power output, the big Bryston 14B-SST amplifier from Canada is a dual-mono design and remains a long-term reference for David Allcock.

Although the baby 3B-SST, which David reviewed enthusiastically in October 2003, employs similar output devices and gives similar sound, used with larger rooms and in bigger systems there's no substitute for sheer muscle – which the 14B-SST certainly provides. After all, it has a rating of no fewer than 600W per channel for an 8ohm load, rising to 900W into 4ohms. As David says, “The 14B manages to carry a shade more bass weight and paints its bass textures with a subtly wider palette.”

Bryston built its reputation in the pro audio market, which is why its amplifiers seem to be practically unbreakable. They come with a 20-year warranty.”
