SUBJECT: BDA-1 DAC Review in Italian Magazine "SUONO"

DATE: September 1st, 2009

Hi All,

Please see excerpts below from a terrific review on the Bryston BDA-1 External DAC in the September 2009 issue of Italian Magazine SUONO. I have a PDF of the full review in Italian available.

Bryston Suono Test Excerpts:

- "Our first approach to the sound of the Bryston has been thrilling, Such is the huge similarity in timbre to the Accuphase (CD Player-our reference system), which is undoubtedly excellent. We are indeed in presence of a converter that can be safely compared to the 'big ones' as far as timbre correctness is concerned.
- All frequency ranges are free from any kind of compression, limits or coloring, you get a very natural listen results from it. It's the type of performance that we should expect from a much more expensive product, and that puts therefore the Bryston in the 'chosen few' category of products.
- The dynamic power of this converter is really very good, so that it's easy to forget about it, to leave the musical message flow just like the sound engineer has conceived it.

- You will find difficult to get better than the BDA-1 both from the versatility and the reliability. It may be surprised us a bit (but only just) that products like this can not only are very solidly built but also sound so well...!”
